

THE SWEDISH SOUTH POLAR EXPEDITION 1901-1903

BACKGROUND AND INTRODUCTION

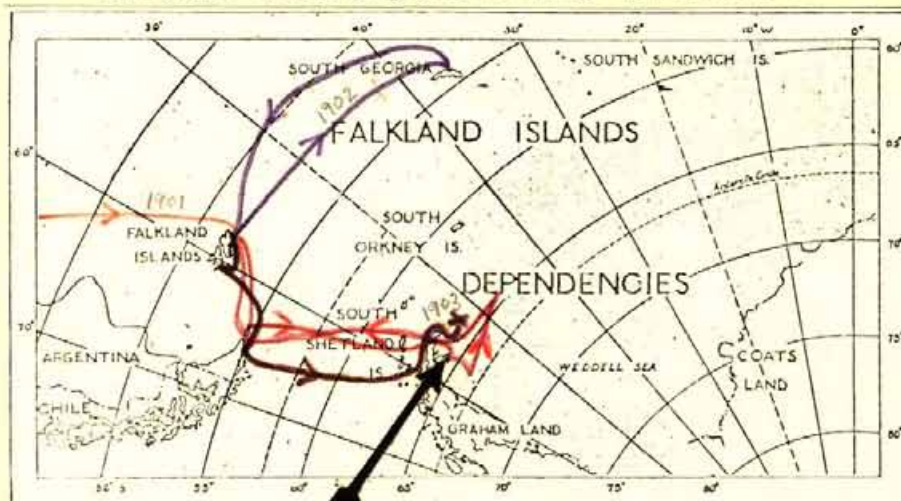

The Swedish South Polar Expedition was part of an international program for increasing the knowledge of Antarctica. The purpose of the expedition was to build a winter station on the east coast of Graham Land, to explore this part of Antarctica and to make meteorological and magnetical observations. In the meantime the expedition ship "Antarctic" and the scientists not staying at the winter station, would go to South Georgia to explore the island. They left Sweden in the autumn 1901 and planned to return in the summer 1903.

Due to severe ice conditions, it was not possible to relieve the wintering party on Snow Hill Island after one winter. When trying to reach the winter station, the expedition ship was caught in the pack ice and finally lost after a struggle lasting for several weeks. So all the scientists and crew had to stay in the region for another winter.

When nothing had been heard of from the expedition in 1903, two relief expeditions were sent out, one from Sweden ("Frithiof") and one from Argentina ("Uruguay"). The Argentine relief expedition was successful and rescued the expedition members in November 1903.

This exhibit shows 42 items from or to 13 different expedition members, of which 14 have the expedition cachet, S.Y. "ANTARCTIC" SWEDISH EXPEDITION. In addition there are many postcards, documents and ephemera from the expedition. There are also two items sent by the Swedish Relief Expedition with the expedition cachet, and one sent by the Argentine Relief Expedition.

INLEDNING

I slutet av 1950-talet skrev H E Vesper i sin bok "Die Post in der Antarktis" att inga försändelser var kända från den Svenska Sydpolarexpeditionen. Sedan dess har dock ett antal vykort och brev med anknytning till expeditionen kommit fram, även om de internationellt fortfarande anses vara mycket sällsynta.

I detta exponat visas en mycket stor andel av vad som existerar i form av försändelser till och från medlemmar av denna expedition. För att göra exponatet mer levande har även medtagits ett antal vykort med motiv från eller med anknytning till expeditionen samt en del annat illustrationsmaterial som man ur filatelistisk synpunkt dock inte bör fästa så stor betydelse vid. De är dock intressanta ur historisk synpunkt och kan också hjälpa till att förstå hur otroligt riskfyllt och primitivt det var för de första expeditionerna till antarktis. Mycket har onekligen hänt på mindre än 100 år, även inom detta område.

Kärnan i exponatet är naturligtvis försändelserna till och från de olika expeditionsmedlemmarna och här visas inte mindre än 43 försändelser till eller från ⁵⁶ olika expeditionsmedlemmar: Otto Nordenskjöld (chef), Carl Skottsberg (botanist), Erik Ekblom (läkare), Gösta Bodman (meteorolog), C A Larsen (kapten), F L Andreassen (förste styrman), H J Haslum (andre styrman), Gustaf Åkerlundh (matros), Jose Sobral (Argentinas deltagare). ^{Gustaf Åkerlundh, Samuel D. J. S. C. Handwritten notes}
Av de 43 försändelserna har 16 den internationellt mycket eftertraktade expeditionsstämpeln S.Y. "ANTARCTIC" SWEDISH EXPEDITION. Här finns post avsänd från i princip varje hamn expeditionen passerade där det fanns postmöjligheter, från utgångshamnen Göteborg i oktober 1901 till Ushuaia på Tierra del Fuego (Argentina) i november 1902, vilket var den sista hamn som besöktes före förlisningen. ^{56, 23}

Vidare visas den enda kända försändelsen med den Svenska ANTARKTISKA UNDSÄTTNINGSEXPEDITIONEN:s stämpel avsänd av Olof Gylden, undsättningsexpeditionens chef, från Ushuaia i november 1903. ^{1. Ungeby}

Avslutningsvis visas också exempel på korrespondens mellan Carl Skottsberg och medlemmar av andra Sydpolarexpeditioner under några år efter den svenska expeditionens återkomst.

The official expedition postcard showing the expedition ship "Antarctic", with Dr Ekelöf's signature (physician of the expedition).

The "Antarctic" was built in Drammen, Norway in 1871, named "Cap Nor" and used for sealing for many years. It was 128 feet long, 28 feet wide and weighed 353 tons.

In 1893-95 the "Antarctic" was used for Svend Foyn's expedition to the South Indian Ocean, in 1898 for A G Nathorst's expedition to Spitsbergen, in 1899 for his expedition to Greenland and in 1901 for G De Geer's expedition to Spitsbergen.

LETTER FROM ANNA NORDENSKJÖLD

"... I am sure that you have heard and read about that Otto's long, dangerous journey to the South Polar area has started. ... We went to Gothenburg with Otto and spent 5 days there together with the expedition members. It was a great pleasure to see the "Antarctic" and we were on board many hours every day inspecting the loading of the innumerable number of items required. It was so nice to meet all the members, Captain Larsen, whom we found to be very pleasant, and all the scientists, who we like a lot. The expedition has received a large public interest. 150 companies have given things worth from 100 to several 1000 kr without even having been asked. The King and Nansen sent farewell telegrams.

They were well received in England, left some mail at St Vincent (Cape Verde Islands) and we are now expecting telegrams from Buenos Aires. We cannot send letters until August and then we have to send them to the Falkland Islands. "Antarctic" will pick them up there in October on the way down to the winter station to relieve Otto and his 5 companions. ..."

"... Otto doesn't know about his father's death yet, and won't get a letter until November if "Antarctic" can reach them. ... As you have probably seen in the newspapers we have now had news and letters about "Antarctic"'s return to Port Stanley. On the way back from the winter station, after they had left Otto and his 5 companions, they had a terrible snow storm for 2 1/2 days and it was so hard that Captain Larsen told the others that they could only expect to be wrecked before the night. But, at last, the wind changed and they saw that they had passed the rocks where they had expected to be crushed. If the "Antarctic" had been lost then no-one would have known where the winter station is.

They have already made many scientific discoveries although the summer was short and the ice conditions difficult. ..."

"... How will everything be when "Antarctic" reaches the winter station and Otto will receive the message about his father's death, so far away. From the expedition we have received good news and we hope the luck continues and that we in February will get a happy telegram, that they are on solid ground again. ..."

om han så älskade Pär bortgick.
Ach! Hur skall det vara när Otto då Antarktis uppfinner Vinterstationen, och huru skall det bli för Otto
när han får det meddelandet långt, långt efteråt och långt ifrån oss.
Hur vi frösta huru det kan
var vi vill vil den tanken!
Från Expi: har det ju kommit flera, sedant i den dagen, goda underrättelser - och vi ju långt och bra

LETTER FROM ANNA NORDENSKJÖLD

30.12.1903

"... Finally, after 2 years of sadness and loss, I too can be happy and my Otto will soon be home again. Otto has probably just received the news about his father's death, with the arrival of the "Uruguay". The relief was just like a fairy-tale, just in time did they all, with the exception of one, gather from the different places, within a couple of days, and were soon on their way home. I have received a letter from Otto; it was written during 2 years with long interruptions. At the winter station at least they had food, something the 20 shipwrecked men lacked. Captain Larsen writes that his crew was excellent. During the month when the "Antarctic" was half-sunk, they all worked very hard trying to get her beached somewhere, and when she had sunk and they all had to fight for their lives in the long, dark antarctic winter, without shelter and with little food and clothes, no-one complained. Here in Sweden disappointment prevails, because the Swedish Relief ship did not rescue the members of the expedition. We expect them back on the 8th January. ..."
